Something New Under the Sun

Teens from the sophisticated discotheques of the eastern seaboard to the psychedelic shores of Malibu feel that a school is never 'up tight' until it has graduated a senior class and made itself known to high schools everywhere. This past summer Panthers noticed expressions other than blank looks when R. Nelson Snider High School was mentioned. Pupils as near as New Haven and as far away as Tampa, Florida, are well aware of who the Snider Panthers are. Some attribute the new-found success to a beautiful building, but the real beauty is beyond the brick and cement. Neither is this acknowledgement merely because the school is aging. It was the result of much time and effort by many people. Two National Merit Finalists, an extremely high standing in numerous NISBOVA contests, a city football championship, a sectional crown in basketball, and the city sportsmanship trophy are several examples of the rewards of hard work. Fifty percent of Snider's first graduating class is now attending a four-year college, another twenty percent is engaged in other two-year training programs. Pupils have worked and will continue to work to uphold the tradition of greatness. Everywhere people are finding that Snider High School is SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN.

The Business Department offers many courses that help to prepare the student for the working world after graduation. The student who has taken these courses and learned the skills receives a better chance for prompt employment. Research on careers and their opportunities, encourages students to decide their choice of a career. In certain business classes, awareness of finances, the stockmarket, merchandice and products is taught and this enables the student to capitalize on opportunities.

Among the courses which Snider presently has are Personal Typing, Typing I and II, Shorthand, Bookkeeping and Accounting, Business Law, General Business and Clerical Practice. Typing and Shorthand are advisable for college bound students as well as students who wish to go into clerical work. General Business offers an understanding of our business system which enables the student to be a better worker and/or customer. Clerical Practice is the most practical course which any student who plans to work in a business office can take. Business Law develops an understanding of personal rights and personal obligations in business transactions. Future law students should find this course helpful.

A study of grammar, literature, and composition are included in the English Department.

Emphasis is placed upon American literature during the sophomore year. Students read short stories, classics and contemporary novels. Six book reports are required of all students. Through practice in theme writing students gain basic knowledge of sentence structure and paragraph unity.

Junior English classes cover nearly the same material, but with some variation in emphasis. A study of Shakespear's Macbeth and Shaw's Pygmalion are included in the curriculum. All junior students are required to read and report on six books. Expository writing and grammar are combined and put to good use in writing a research paper, another requirement of the junior year.

A selective survey of modern literature is the main area of literary study during senior English with a special emphasis placed upon Shaw's Caeser and Cleopatra and O'Neill's Beyond the Horizon. Constant reference to the rules of good grammar are also made, especially as the need is expressed in the written work. A special half hour oral report is another feature of the course.

Fine Arts Brings 'Birdie' to Snider to Highlight Season's Performance

The Fine Arts department offers a great variety of courses that range from academic to performance classes. Dramatics, stagecraft, art, and music, both instrumental and vocal, constitute the performing area. Music theory, speech, and Today's Music are academic courses. This department is made up of approximately six hundred Snider students, which is well over one-third of the student body.

Snider's Fine Arts department makes it possible for individual students to excel and to pursue their ambitions. Courses in fine arts encourage the use of imagination and creativity while learning responsibility. This has been the busiest and most profitable year yet. With Snider's unlimited potential, the future promises to be even better.

Two money-making drives were sponsored by the Fine Arts department this year. Every year the students work diligently for a series of displays, concerts, and plays. Special events included organization contest, solo and ensemble contests, a demonstration concert by the Concert Orchestra, and the musical Bye, Bye, Birdie. The year was climaxed by the annual Spring Concert which was a combined effort of all members of the department.

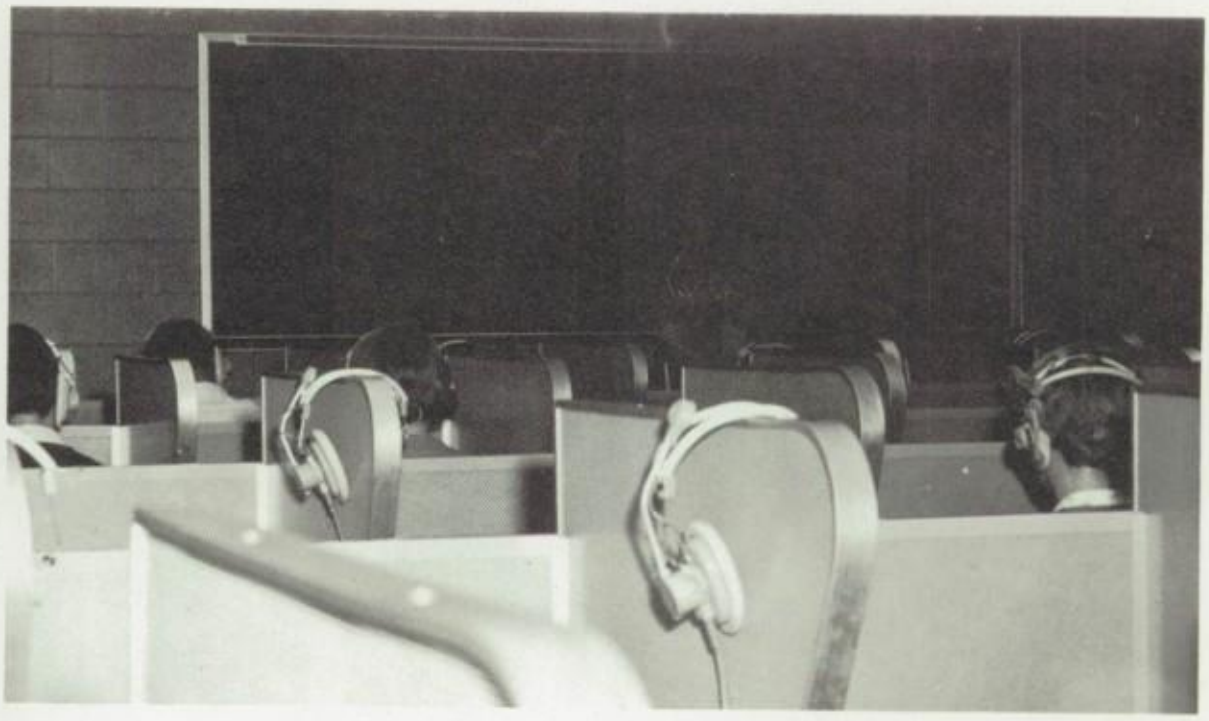
BELOW: The language lab was put to good use by the foreign language students. Lab sessions not only made it possible for the teachers to give individual help, but the students were able to improve themselves in the areas of grammar usage and pronunciation.



The Foreign Language department is composed of French, Latin, German, and Spanish. French I establishes a foundation in listening comprehension, response, reading, and writing. Basic vocabulary is learned and grammar is stressed through explanation and practice. French II stresses oral fluency, pronounciation, and the verb system. French III includes grammar, continued oral practice, and conversation. Literary works of several writers are read. French IV is a course in French literature and civilization.

Latin I includes basic grammar and vocabulary. Latin II involves reading parts of Caesar's Gallic Wars and portions from Ovid and Pliny. Latin III reviews grammar and relates current political and economic problems to those of Rome. It includes Roman oratory and readings of Cicero. Latin IV is a study of Roman poetry, mythology, and religion.

German I introduces German culture, vocabulary, and grammar. German II is a study of geography, history, habits, and music, as well as grammar.

Spanish I stresses the basic structure of the language, poems, songs, grammar, and pronounciation. Advanced dialogues and grammar are studied in Spanish II. Spanish III concerns reading and writing short essays, and Spanish IV concentrates on reading and comprehending Spanish literature and history.

Home Economics Department Offers Girls the Opportunity to Round Out an Academic Education

Snider's Home Economics Department offers a wide range of courses designed for the girls in the art of managing a home.

Offered in Home Economics I are two courses, Nutrition and Meal Planning and Preparation. Nutrition is a study of vitamins, minerals, fats, and carbohydrates in relation to body needs. The basic four food groups are studied for the purpose of application to food selection and preparation. Meal Planning and Preparation is a take off from the Nutrition course.

Home Economics II courses are Housing and Home Management and Home Nursing and Child Care. The Housing and Home Management course is designed to give girls an understanding of everything involved with the running of a home. The purpose of Home Nursing and Child Care is to give the student basic knowledge in home care and an understanding of the developing child.

Home Economics III offers two courses, Wardrobe Planning and Clothing Construction and Personal and Social Relations. The former gives the student knowledge of proper clothing construction and of buying clothes. In the latter course students concentrate in personal adjustment in varied situations.

In Snider there is an industrial arts program which enables students, mainly interested boys, an opportunity to broaden their education in the field of industrial arts. Four such courses are offered here at Snider. These four are woods, metals, drafting, and power mechanics. The Wood I and II courses are taught by Mr. Short and lasts for one year each. The first functions of this course are to teach students the care of tools and the elementary construction of projects then to turn to projects like cabinet making, mill work, and other interests. Drafting I, taught by Mr. Kline, is a course to learn the fundamentals of drafting, lettering, sketching, and other needs to prepare the student for the advanced drafting II course, where engineering and/or architecture are taught. Metals I and II are taught by Mr. Huffman to offer experience in the field of metals. They last one year each. Power mechanics is taught by Mr. Huffman also. This one year course teaches a study of circuitry and motors and the student has an opportunity to work with small combustion engines. All of these courses give a chance for Snider students to learn industrial trades which will aid in their future field of work.

Various Levels of Mathematics Classes Are Taught to Give Students Preparation for Their Future

"You've got to be kidding," thinks Bill Fishering as Mr. Scholz patiently explains how to substitute trigonometric identities.

The 1967-68 school year at Snider found many students enjoying classes in the field of mathematics. A faculty of eight teachers taught these students in the various courses of algebra, geometry, advanced algebra, trigonometry and analytical geometry. This year another course, topics in mathematics, was offered during the second semester for students desiring one more credit in this subject.

In the math department, classes are in sequence of order for enrollment. Students first enroll in algebra, then geometry and advanced algebra and trigonometry in order to have better understanding for the material.

When the month of March approached, Panthers who are taking the classes of advanced algebra and trigonometry and analytical geometry received the opportunity to participate in a nation-wide mathematics examination. One hundred and forty-one Snider students participated during this school year. These one hundred and forty-one students were ranked with all other students from the high schools participating in the examination.

Phys Ed Classes Develop Skills

Many students took part in Snider's physical education program. This program included not only regularly conducted classes, but extra-curricular activities as well. Sophomores were required to take physical education classes. Juniors and seniors took physical education classes according to their own choice and needs. The students were taught a variety of things in these classes, ranging from the use of apparatus, softball and modern dance, to tennis and volleyball.

A number of extra-curricular programs were also offered to those students interested. Among these were archery, fencing, girls' basketball and volleyball, and gymnastics. Many students took advantage of these afterschool activities.

The greatest task undertaken by the physical education department during the year was the annual gym show, "The Greatest Show on Earth." The show included a number of events including modern dance, volleyball, free exercise, a six-ring circus, routines on the apparatus equipment, karate demonstrations, wrestling, and clown acts. The show, presented in April, gave the students an opportunity to display their skills and talents.

The Science department offers a wide variety of courses. Only one course, earth science, is offered to sophomores. Juniors have a choice of zoology, chemistry, physics, or earth science. Seniors have all these selections plus advanced chemistry. Chem Study is presently taught at Snider. This course involves answering the question "why" instead of the traditional method which focused on memorization and deductive reasoning. Chemists study materials found on the earth to analyze their atomic and molecular structures and the changes that affect them. Panther chemists share a lab and equipment to explore the depths of chemistry. Advanced chemistry broadens the senior's basic knowledge of chemistry and keeps him in practice for a college elective. Energy and power of all types are investigated within the scope of physics. This science involves the occupation of engineering which designs methods of converting energy from one form to another, Zoology is the study of animals and their environment. Snider zoologists name, classify, examine, and describe how living organisms look and act. The only sophomore elective, earth science, is the study of the composition of the earth. Subtitled here are geology, meterology, oceanography, and astronomy.

Every student who passes through the doors of Snider is required to take four semesters of social studies. For students who wish to enrich their background in history, a social studies club is on the Panther curriculum. This year the club was honored to have Mr. McClurg as its sponsor and organizer.

The department, coordinated by Mr. Gecowets, offers only one course, world history, to the incoming sophomores. In the junior year United States history is the required curriculum. Snider offers its most varied semester selection to the seniors. Economics and sociology are both recommended, but a requirement for graduation is the completion of one of the two. Seniors must also pass the essentials of a semester course, government, in order to attend graduation exercises in May. The most recent course added to Panther opportunities is values and issues which investigates basic problems and assets of the American society.

The climax of the junior year is the weeklong tour prepared by the history department. Usually occuring during spring vacation the trek includes Washington D.C. and other places of historical interest.

Competition

All good harriers know the importance of exercise to keep their muscles toned. Jeff Schneider is warming up before a meet.

Jeff Schneider is at the peak of his conditioning for the year as he takes part in the Sectional Cross Country Meet. Snider finished third in the Sectionals.

Before a capacity crowd, the Panthers took an early commanding lead to easily down the North Side Redskins, 71—58. Excellent ball handling, timing, and skill were combined for the long-awaited victory.

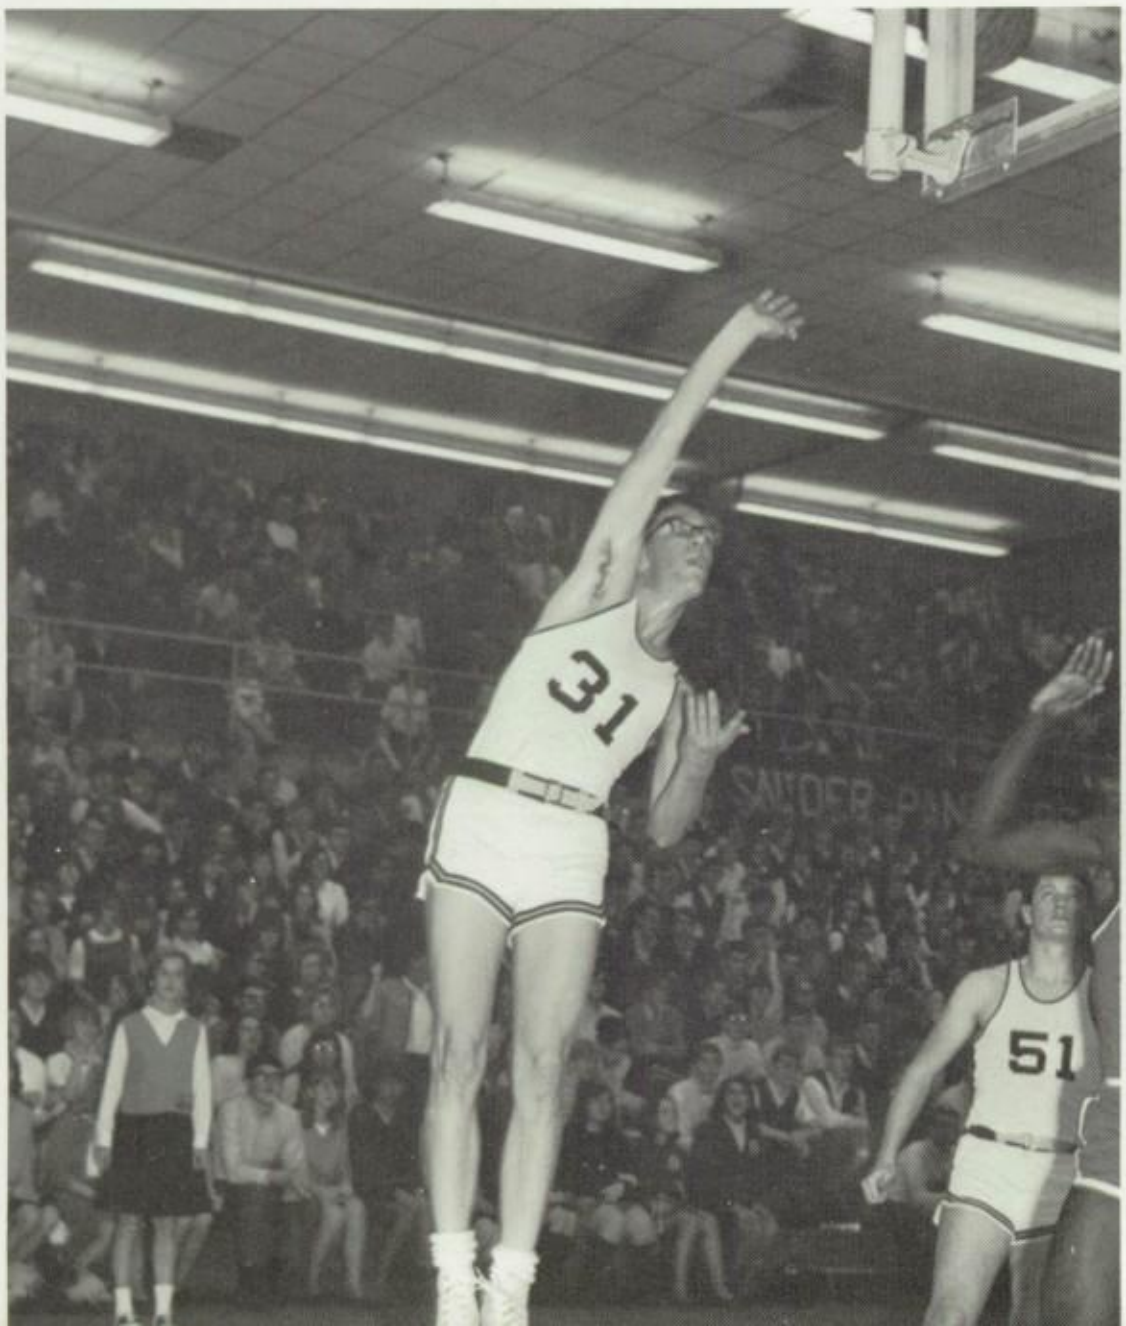
Panther Dave Gecowets and a Central forward vie for the ball during the Sectional Two play-off. Although Snider bowed to Central, enthusiasm and spirit never faltered.

As the audience held its breath, Dan Scheib tossed the ball for two points. On this ocasion the Panther squad, to the tune of a capacity crowd, overpowered North.

SHS Receives Sportsmanship Trophy for 2nd Year



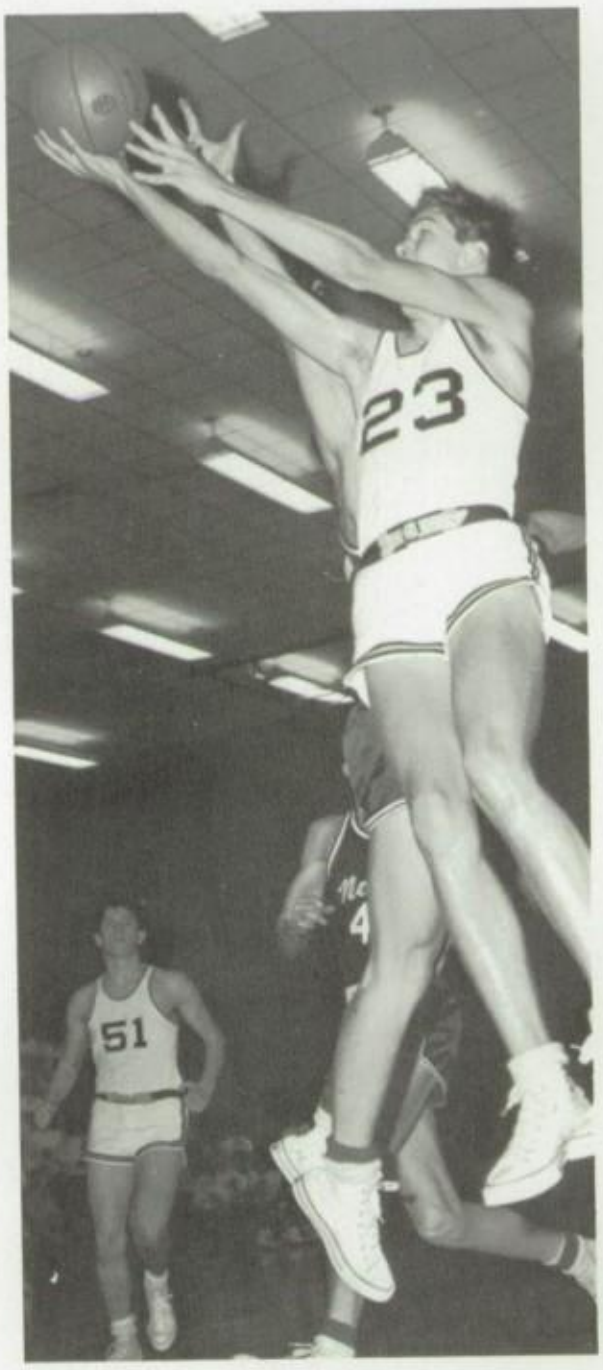
LEFT: Suspense builds as senior Eric Retrum arches to hook a basket. The Hoosier Hysteria certainly is relived during the Panther season.

ABOVE: Perfect timing and hard practice pay off as Denny Kinney performs a lay-up for two points against the Dwenger Saints.

LEFT: Dick Smith shoots to add two more points in the long-awaited North Side game. Panther-Redskin rivalry had been built up since the regularly scheduled game had been cancelled. When the game was played, it proved to be one of the best of the season.

BELOW: Snider's high scorer for the season, Dick Smith, attempts an overhead shot over a guarding Luer opponent as Dave Gecowets waits for the rebound.

RIGHT: Denny Kinney (51) runs to help Dick Smith make the rebound in the most thrilling game of the season against North Side.



Reserve and 'C' Teams Gain Experience for the Future

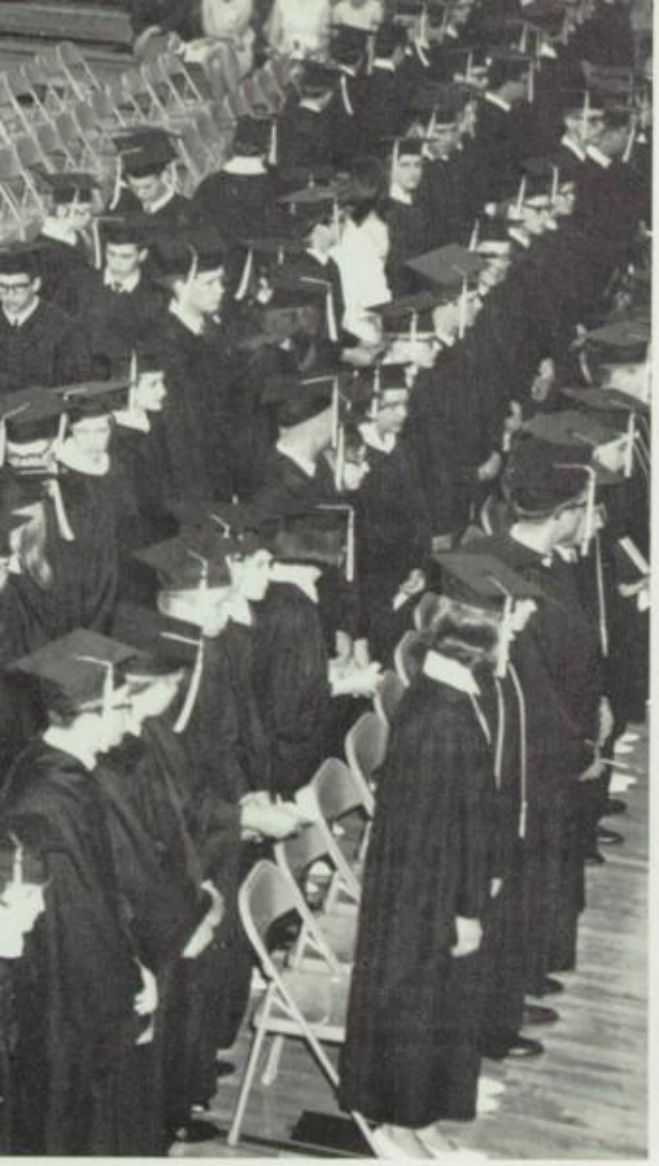
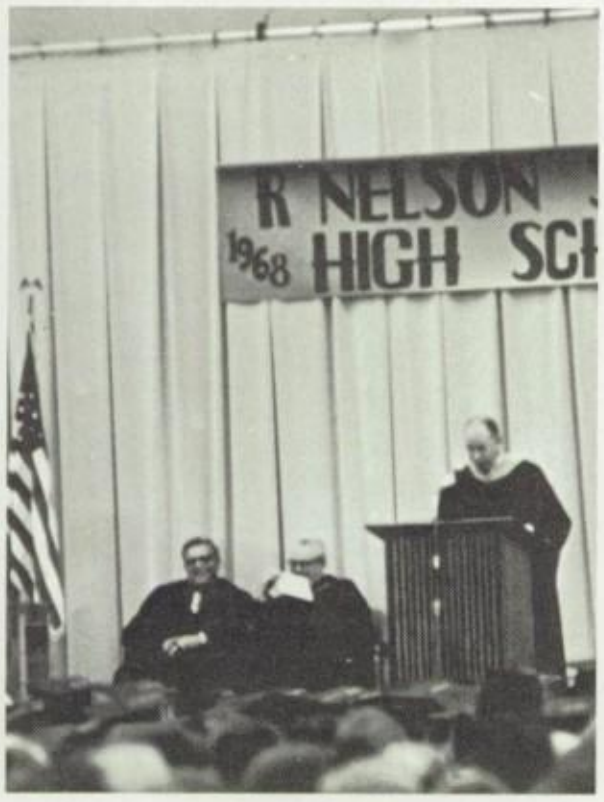
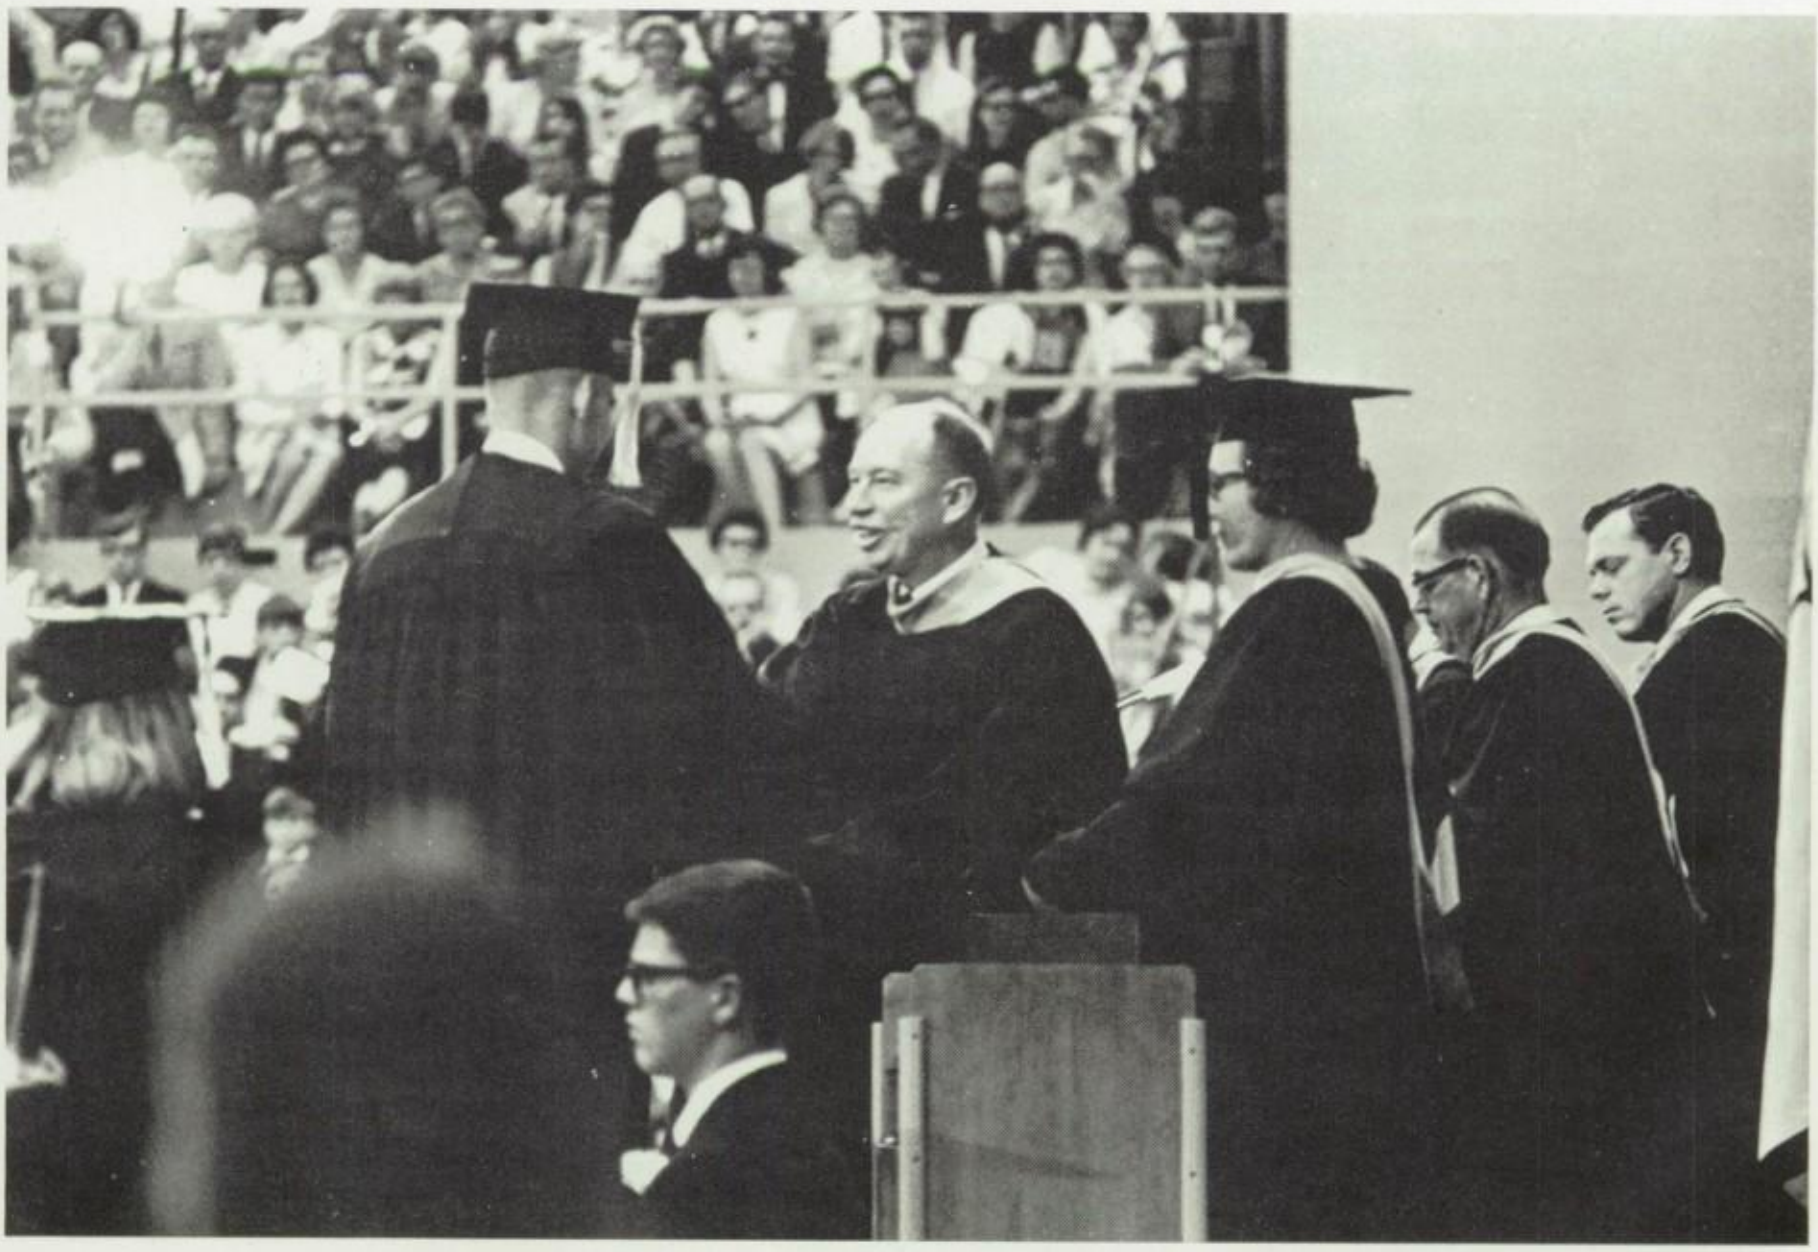
Students Take a





Final Walk to Receive Their High School Diplomas



The Junior Class Officers for the 1967-1968 school year were Rex Sefton, vice-president; Connie Lambert, secretary; Brett Nahrwold, class president; and Kay Fuhrman, treasurer. Mrs. Posey and Mr. Hemmer, class sponsors, were always on hand to assist the class officers. They spent much time preparing plans for the Junior Prom, "Oriental Twilight." They also worked on other activities such as the Sophomore Mixer given early in the year for the Sophomore Class.

Junior Class Returns to Build on Its Foundation

From the start, the Junior Class found themselves in "everything under the sun." Throughout the year, juniors used their talents and time in everything from studying Shakespeare's Macbeth to mixing substances in chemistry lab. In the fall, the juniors elected class officers. Those chosen were Brett Nahrwold, president; Rex Sefton, vice-president; Connie Lambert, secretary; and Kay Fuhrman, treasurer. With the help of their sponsors, Mr. Hemmer and Mrs. Posey, they organized a Sophomore Mixer, a time when new sophomores could become acquainted. During the winter months, plans were begun for the Junior Prom on April 20, an event which the juniors will never forget. The Junior Breakfast was considered a triumph by the juniors because the underclassmen served the food. During the spring, the libraries were buzzing with students conscientiously working on their English research papers. Hard work and relaxation were successfully combined by the juniors for a truly rewarding year.

"Oriental Twilight" with Jimmy Steir and Orchestra

Captures Far-Eastern Mood for Juniors and Dates

DeLane Fielden, Mark Greenlee, Mark La Suer, and Marsha Smith were elected to lead the Sophomore Class in 1968. The officers, with the help of their sponsors, Mrs. Wallis and Mr. Patterson, organized all class functions during the school year.

Mark Greenlee Elected in

This year, another group of dazed sophomores began their high school career at Snider. As always these students were a little embarrassed, a little excited, and greatly confused; but they soon settled down, formed a standard routine, and began a year of learning and socializing.

The sophomores learned, through studying, that Panther life is not only rewarding; but filled with sports events, extra-curricular activities, pep sessions, and dances. The sophomores soon joined in the preparations as well as the fun of these activities.

During the year, the sophomores chose their class officers. Elected were Mark Greenlee, president; Mark La Suer, vice-president; DeLane Fielden, secretary; and Marsha Smith, treasurer. These people, under the guidance of their class sponsors, planned all class activities. They organized and headed the committees for the Sophomore Party, on March 15, which ended the first year for the class of '70.

From the Editor

It seems that every experience in life is a learning experience, and such has been my job as Editor of the 1968 SAFARI. I have learned not only of picas, three column lay-out, and cropping; but also of people. Working with so many individual people has truly been the great benefit from my position.

A special thank you goes to Ruth Hart, SAFARI advisor, for her guidance and patience. Also, I would like to thank Mr. Jim Arthur and Mr. Bob Blanton, both of American Yearbook Company for their professional assistance and personal tolerance.

The work of people like Ginny Rish, Dave Dopp, Sally Shambaugh, and Kathy Thorington has made this SAFARI "Something New Under The Sun."

I say in all honesty that it has been a wonderful job and one which I will miss. Best of Luck to Dave Dopp and the Staff of SAFARI '69.

Darlene -
To a nice girl who sets behind me in homeroom and talks to much who is wild, but can't be helped.
I wish you all the luck in the world and love fun in the future
